

The Roleplay

The aim of this roleplay is that the students get to know how a school day in the Victorian time was and to know how the children/students were treated. This includes studying, punishments and more things like that.

Make sure that the students only get a paper and a pencil because that's the only equipment they can use. Let them sit very close to each other and for example dictate them a short test until they know it by heart or you can also ask them math questions. Make sure that you are very strict and that you maybe punish the students. (Examples for the punishment are written on the text about school and education).

Be creative and let them get the feeling of 19th century.
